Governor Awards SSU $407,671

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced the award of $407,671 to SSU as part of a grant to provide reemployment and retraining for over 580 workers unemployed due to area plant closings.

Under the direction of Department of Social Work chair, Dr. Marvin G. Tossey, the SSU Institute for Community and Educational Development will plan, implement and evaluate the Lower Shore Revitalization Program (LSRP) through a contract with the Lower Shore Private Industry Council, Inc. and the collaboration of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED). The program has an overall budget of $950,000 and the contract period will be through mid-1991.

"This grant from DEED is a fine example of how the state, private industry and a local university can work together to provide a full range of services for the lower Shore's; dislocated workers," said Gov. Schaefer. "We will continue to work together to market the lower Shore for business and tourism."

Through Dislocated Worker Assistance Centers in Pocomoke City and in Crisfield, workers who have lost their jobs due to the closure of manufacturing plants such as Campbell's Soup Company, Swanson's, Mrs. Paul's Kitchens and Carvel Hall Cutlery will be counseled and educated.

Counseling emphasizes job placement, employment skills, job development and basic readjustment services relating to the unique needs of dislocated workers. Education services include adult basic education (ABE), GED and an array of retraining opportunities. Many educational services are offered in the Pocomoke City and Crisfield centers. Additional retraining programs are available through vocational schools and community colleges.

University President Thomas E. Bellavance said, "We look forward to being an essential part of this program which will benefit the people of the lower Shore."

Jeffrey Alan Dyer from Dover, DE, recipient of the 1990 Alumni Association scholarship, will be carrying on a family tradition when he enters SSU this fall. His father, Clarence "Pat" Dyer ('70), graduated with an M.A. from SSU and his sister, Julie, is a junior. Jeffrey Dyer, an outstanding student from Caesar Rodney High School, expects to major in physics and chemistry at the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. He looks forward to the $1,000-a-year, four-year alumni scholarship's help in attaining his academic goals.

Board Nominations Please

If you, or an alum you know, would like to serve the three-year-term as a board member of the SSU Alumni Association, please send candidates' names and descriptions to Billye Sarbanes ('62), chair of Board Search Committee, Office of Alumni Affairs, by September 11. Rev. Nichols First Black Woman Superintendent in U.S.

The Rev. Charlotte Nichols ('75) made history when Bishop Joseph H. Yaekel appointed her the first woman district superintendent of the Easton District, making her the first woman to hold that position in the Peninsula Conference and the first black woman United Methodist district superintendent in the United States. Nichols, who lives in Easton, took up her new post July 1.

Bernstein Award

Douglas Lee Johnson ('90), recipient of this year's Richard Bernstein Achievement Award, was already the owner and operator of a viable business when he graduated from The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

Johnson's lawn mowing venture, started in junior high school, has grown into Lawn Masters, a landscaping and lawn care business with six part-time employees, serving homes and businesses within a 10-mile radius of Salisbury.

The award, established four years ago by SSU alum Richard Bernstein, president and general manager of K & L Microwave, recognizes students who display outstanding academic abilites and demonstrate entrepreneurial spirit. Johnson plans to invest the accompanying $5,000 check in equipment for his business.

'86 Alumni Scholarship Recipient Wins $60,000 Award

Rita Ware ('90), recipient of the 1986 SSU Alumni Association Scholarship, has been awarded a $60,000 scholarship to attend graduate school at the University of Arizona where she will study pharmacology. At SSU she was inducted into Phi Kappa Phi and earned the 1990 James Glenn Memorial Award for Chemistry. Ware hopes to become a pharmaceutical researcher.

Over 200 enthusiastic fans bussed, vanned and drove to Memorial Stadium for the SSU Alumni Association annual Orioles baseball game. The Birds soundly defeated the Chicago White Sox in the game which followed a joint SSU/Frostburg State bullpen picnic.

French Golf Tournament Set

The fourth annual Wallace Q. French Memorial Golf Tournament will be held, September 24, at the Prospect Bay Country Club, Graysonville, MD.

A 1991 Sonoma GMC truck will be the hole-in-one prize offered by Ramsey Pontiac Olds of Chestertown for the tournament which kicks off at 9:30 a.m. and concludes with lunch in the clubhouse.

Sixty-five golfers played in last year's event, which raised over $6,000 toward a scholarship in environmental health. Last year's recipient was biology major, Jill Goodman ('90).

French ('50) is remembered as a pioneer environmentalist by his long-time friend and colleague, Pete Maugans, who worked with him in the State Health Department. "He was liked by everyone, a real gentleman, who kept a cool head while doing an often-unpopular job." French died in 1986.

For further details, call John Beskid (301) 758-2281, or the Alumni Office. Sponsorships are still available.

University Center Wins Barrier-free Award

SSU's University Center has been awarded the 1990 Barrier-free Design Award from the Governor's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities. The 76,000 square-foot Center's ramped entrances, wide walkways and handicapped-accessible facilities qualified it for the award.

Concern for the needs of the handicapped has long been important to SSU, and the work of the administration through the Office of Handicapped Services is the reason 30 disabled students have chosen it as their campus. That concern is born out in the specially-designed dorms and other structural and learning facilities the campus offers. A $400,000 handicapped-accessible garden linking the University Center with the main campus is also scheduled for completion this October.

"On behalf of the disabled in our area who have benefitted from the University's efforts, I congratulate SSU on its work, sensitivity and compassion for their needs," said Paul Rendine ('74), chairman of the Lower Eastern Shore Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, on whose recommendation the Governor's award was made. Rendine, a paraplegic, combines his position as vice president of Wheat First Securities with a busy schedule of community involvement.

"We are honored to receive such recognition," said Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, University president, "and will make sure it represents a benchmark in our on-going plan to provide a barrier-free education for everyone."

Help Goldy Reach His Goal!

Dear Friends:
As an attempt to develop a file on all former SNS, STC, SSC and SSU athletes, I am requesting that you complete the questionnaire below. We are planning to have a folder for each participant, so please continue on notepaper, as needed. We also welcome pictures and scrapbook items of your athletic participation both while at Salisbury State and since. If in doubt, send it!

We aim, eventually, to have a full-fledged Athletic Hall where such memorabilia and files are kept for posterity.

Thank you for your time and energy in this venture.

Remember When....

Did this picture remind you of the time "Jack Armstrong" got caught for speeding...or when that handsome '50'er (who still brings a flutter to the hearts of his female classmates) took the station wagon on a jaunt to Baltimore? Memories are jogged in many ways, whether by a glimpse of the belltower, the trees on the front lawn, or the tinkling of the Social Room piano. We're planning to make a collection of memories, old and new—starting with this wagon—and we need your help. Please send your reminiscences to Wendy Thompson, Office of Alumni Affairs, or call her (301) 548-5090.

Creative Teaching Earns Riall Award

Twenty-one-year old Dawn Marie Smarowsky, a May graduate of SSU, has won the $5,000 E. Pauline Riall Award for being the outstanding senior in elementary education at the University.

Smarowsky, who taught second graders at Princess Anne Elementary school during her student teaching, arranged for reptiles from Salisbury Zoo to be brought into the classroom, then gave children assignments writing stories with reptile characters, combining creative writing with biology. According to Kay Dodson, her supervising teacher, "Not only did the students learn from Dawn, I learned. She gave me a lot of new ideas."

Initiated a year ago, the award is given from an endowment left by E. Pauline Riall, who was, for 40 years, a teacher and principal at the Campus Demonstration School. It is the largest cash gift of its kind in the Maryland public university system devoted solely to honoring excellence in education at the undergraduate level. No restrictions are placed on the use of funds. The Riall Trust also provides funding for guest lectures.

Brunch at the Gull's Nest

Enjoy an award-winning brunch at the Gull's Nest in the University Center, alternate Sundays from September 9. The meal, featuring steamship round, whole turkey, waffles, low-cholesterol eggs, links, bacon and all the trimmings, was awarded first place by the National Association of College and University Food Services. Service is from 11 a.m.-2 p.m., and costs only $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children.
